

MERGER FOR COAL ROADS

Reading Railway Said to Have Been Leased to the Gould Interests.

SURE OF PROFITS

Delaware and Hudson and the Lackawanna Companies To Pay a Per Cent Annually.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 12.—It is reported here that the Reading railway has been leased to the Delaware and Hudson and the Lackawanna.

This means the end of the Gould-Cassatt war and the entrance of the Gould railroads into New York and Philadelphia without further warfare with the Pennsylvania.

It also means the long expected merger of the four anthracite carrying roads, the Reading, the Delaware and Hudson, the Lackawanna and the New Jersey Central as planned by J. Pierpont Morgan.

It is stated on the authority of Moore and Schley of New York that by the agreement the Delaware and Hudson and the Lackawanna have guaranteed a dividend of 4 per cent on Reading common stock. This arrangement, if carried out, will complete an effectual community of interest among the anthracite producers and carriers. If the two powerful hard coal roads named have acquired the Reading the arrangement would carry with it the New Jersey Central, which is already owned by the Reading. Thus four of the greatest anthracite producers and carriers would be combined.

Morgan Engineers Deal. Ever since J. Pierpont Morgan reorganized the Reading it has been assumed, and almost promised, that the coalers were to be brought closer together, and it was largely due to this idea that so many Philadelphians have planned their faith to Reading.

The report that the Reading will be leased indicates that Morgan may be about to conclude this project. One other reason for the delay has probably been a desire to establish the Reading's earning capacity to the satisfaction of the lessors. The earnings now are eminently satisfactory. The Reading is paying a full dividend of 4 per cent on the first preferred stock, is able to pay 4 per cent on second preferred, and is earning a handsome amount for the common stock.

After the dividend is paid for two consecutive years on the first preferred the second preferred may be wiped out entirely by converting one-half of it into first preferred stock and one-half into common. This is probably why the report relates only to a guarantee of dividends on common stock, as it will likely be the policy of the management to retire the second preferred in the manner named and thus leave only two classes of stock to be cared for by the lessors.

LARGE PERCENTAGE PASS EXAMINATIONS

Candidates for Admission to the Bar Meet with Unusual Success.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 12.—Nearly 62 per cent, or in exact figures 21 out of 34, of the applicants for admission to the bar who took the examination before the state board of law examiners here last week, succeeded in passing the examination and will receive certificates. This is a much higher percentage than has succeeded in passing in recent years, due, the examiners say, to the fact that many of those who took the examination are graduates of law colleges outside the state, who in former years were admitted in Wisconsin without examination, but who under a law passed by the last legislature must now be examined.

The examination was held last week, but the examination of papers was not completed by the board until late yesterday afternoon. The members of the board, all of whom were present and took part in the examination, are: Col. H. J. Rusk, Chippewa Falls, president; A. A. Jackson, Janesville, secretary; S. N. Dickinson, Superior, L. J. Nash, Manitowish, and T. W. Spence, Milwaukee.

ALLEN'S STEALINGS INCREASE

Treasurer of Preachers' Society Stole Also From Historical Fund.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12.—It has been discovered that Willard S. Allen, the embezzling treasurer of the Methodist Preachers' Aid Society, also took $3,000 of the funds of the Methodist Historical Society, of which he was a trustee. This brings the total of his embezzlement from Methodist organizations up to $50,000, and before he fled he borrowed about $20,000 from friends. It is generally believed his losses in Wall street were not heavy and that he took with him fully $75,000. Following the clue furnished by Lewis S. Bates of this city, who arrived here and reported having seen Allen at Rochester, N. Y., the Boston police believe they are squarely on the track of the fugitive.

RIOT FOLLOWS A DISCUSSION

COLORED MAN SHOT A WHITE MAN TODAY.

NEGRO PURSUED BY A MOB

Finally Captured the Black Man and Shot Him—Both Men Expected to Recover.

(Special By Scripps-McRae.) Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 12.—Discussion of the pedagogical aspect of the negro question ended in a race riot this morning. Kay Wood, colored man, and James Sanders, a white man, were indulging in an argument regarding the amount of education a negro should have. Their views were widely different, and in the heat of the debate Wood drew a gun and shot his opponent.

Mob Makes Pursuit. Instantly the greatest excitement arose. A score of men attacked the negro, who with difficulty escaped from their clutches, finally succeeding in taking to flight. A mob was organized and pursued the negro, while wild threats of vengeance were uttered. After a fierce pursuit Wood was overtaken, and finally shot by his pursuers.

Negro Was Shot. Wood was carried back to the city and given over to medical care. It is considered probable that he will recover, as will his victim. Public spirit is at a high pitch in the city, and will probably result in decisive action if Sanders succumbs to his wounds.

NETWORK IN THE SOUTH OF STATE

INTERURBAN LINES STRETCH OUT FROM MADISON.

ORGANIZE ANOTHER CONCERN

"Interstate Electric Company" Will Build Through Albany and Brodhead in Green County.

(Special To The Gazette.) Madison, Wis., Aug. 12.—The second assured electric railroad from Madison to the territory south of here has been incorporated and articles filed in the office of Secretary of State Houser today. The company is named the Interstate Electric Railway and is formed for the purpose of building, operating and maintaining a system of interurban electric railway "from Madison, running thence southeasterly, through Berona, through Albany and Brodhead, all in the state of Wisconsin; thence southerly to a point on the Wisconsin-Illinois state line in the southeastern part of Green county. The entire length of the proposed line within Wisconsin is forty-nine miles."

GOES TO ROCKFORD

The articles of incorporation have been examined carefully by Attorney General Sturdevant, as the company is to operate a continuous line to Rockford, the Illinois portion being already incorporated under the laws of that state. The attorney general has given his opinion to the effect that the articles of incorporation are fully in accord with the Wisconsin statutes governing interstate corporations.

ILLINOISANS INTERESTED

The company is incorporated with capital stock of $50,000, divided into 500 shares of $100 each. The incorporators are: Charles E. Bross of Madison, N. F. Thompson, M. A. Beal, E. H. Keeler and H. N. Starr of Rockford.

This gives Madison three assured interurban roads. One will run to Janesville, connecting with the present completed Janesville-Rockford line; another will run in a southeasterly direction and the company now incorporated will be the third.

BIG FIGHT OCCURS ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Ryan Will Second James Corbett When He Meets James Jeffries in the Fighting Ring.

It has been definitely decided that Tommy Ryan will be adviser general to Jim Corbett when the latter faces Jim Jeffries at San Francisco Friday night. There is no man who knows Jeffries better than Tommy Ryan and he may be of considerable help to Corbett during the battle. There are various reports around 'Frisco about Jeffries' condition, but the chances are most of them are circulated for no other purpose than to influence the betting. It is not likely that Jeffries is so dense as to suppose he cannot be beaten and he does not care about throwing the championship away. When he enters the ring there is little doubt, that he will be pretty near fit to fight a long battle, otherwise there would be a howl from Billy Dolancy, his trainer. Jeffries has been doing very little boxing relying upon outdoor work to get him into condition. This shatters the highly colored stories about the champion being faster than when he met Corbett last time and that he will rely upon his great strength to carry him through. Corbett, too, is reported to be faster than ever, but Jim will be the same clever boxer when he gets in the ring. He will, however, be in better shape, as he has trained long and earnestly for this encounter. The betting remains about the same—2 to 1 on Jeffries—and they will be at that figure or thereabouts the night of the fight. Corbett has an excellent chance of winning the fight on points; of that there is no doubt. Jeffries must depend on landing a knockout blow and he will find it harder to catch the shifty Jim in a 24-foot ring than in a 20-foot ring as was the case at Coney Island.

VICTIMS MAY NUMBER 100

Worst of Tunnel Accident in Paris May Have Been Kept from Public.

MANY ARE MISSING

It Is Believed Today That Officials Have Held Back Facts—Passenger Coach Buried.

(Special By Scripps-McRae.) Paris, Aug. 12.—An alarming rumor is in circulation today to the effect that the authorities are concealing from the public the extent of Monday's disaster and that there is still a passenger coach in the tunnel containing a number of bodies. Credit is given the rumor by the fact that several employes are missing yet as well as a number of passengers.

The funeral of fifty-six victims of the holocaust took place today. In order to allay the suffering among the families of the victims, the transportation company has ordered ten thousand francs distributed to those who are in the greatest need. At least eighty four tortured beings, one-third of them women, are now known to have died a terrible death between the walls of the Metropolitan Electric railway tunnel Monday night, when three trains were consumed by flames, having their inception in a defective dynamo on one of the engines. It is considered probable that the list of victims will reach 100 or more.

The officials are inquiring into the causes of the catastrophe. Had the cars been built of nonflammable material, as is suggested should be done in all cases by Mr. Yerkes in his almost prophetic remarks in New York last year, the accident would not have been possible. It appears that on the engine of train 43, which started the conflagration, the dynamo refused to work. At Les Couronnes a second train began the work of pushing the first.

DYNAMO FIRES ENGINE

After proceeding half way to Menilmontant the dynamo set fire to the engine, the electric lights went out, and with the fierce draught the two trains rapidly were a sea of flame. A third train came thundering along and crashed into the fiery mass. The passengers from all the trains struggled to escape by making their way to one of the stations. Some did manage to reach these, but the main body were burned or asphyxiated. Twenty cars altogether were consumed. They gave forth a tremendous heat which puffed out at Les Couronnes and Menilmontant.

LONG LINES OF AMBULANCES

were gathered at the stations of Menilmontant and Les Couronnes, midway between which the disaster occurred, waiting their freight of corpses. The rescuers proceeded with their work as quickly as possible, but were much hampered by the volumes of smoke which still poured from the tunnel.

IDENTIFY THE DEAD.

As the bodies were recovered they were taken to the morgue and to the barracks of the municipal guard, forty to the former and forty-four to the latter. Many of the victims had handkerchiefs stuffed far into their mouths, evidently having made a vain attempt to keep out the asphyxiating smoke, while they vainly tried to find an exit from the tunnel. Red and congested were the faces of these dead. Others of the corpses were burnt out of semblance to humanity.

The scenes at the mouth of the tunnel as the corpses were brought out to the light of day were appalling. Shrieking women with terrified children in their arms, groaning and weeping men, struggled madly about the exits in an effort to find and recognize mother, husband or son in the limp forms being brought up by the firemen.

As recognition would be made by some unfortunate the agonizing shrieks would redouble. Women as they gazed on their dead husbands would become hysterical or fall fainting to earth.

Flags at Half-Mast.

The city is in mourning. From the Hotel de Ville the flag has flown at half-mast, and the president of the municipal council announced at the Hotel de Ville that the city of Paris would bear the entire expense of the funerals of the victims.

Col. Meaux St. Marc, on behalf of President Loubet, visited the morgue, while Premier Combes went to the scene of the disaster. He descended into the tunnel and made a lengthy inspection. President Loubet has telegraphed an expression of his grief to the president of the municipal council. At the American consulate it has been learned that there were no Americans among the victims. A judicial investigation of the accident is to be held.

Fire broke out in one of the trains of the Metropolitan Electric road at Tornos station. There was quite a panic.

CHERRY BLOSSOMS MAKE GORGEOUS SCENE OF BEAUTY IN THE EAST

MRS. HIBBARD WRITES OF HER PRETTY GARDEN.

GRASS IS BARRED FROM LAWN

Japanese Gardener Plucks Every Green Blade—Troubles in Finding a New Home.

Cherry blossom time, the month of April, is evidently one of the most attractive seasons of the year in Japan. Mrs. Susie Lowell Hibbard writes enthusiastically of its beauties in many of her letters, in one of which she says:

"There is only one thing for you to do, and that is to come to Japan and see for yourselves the glories of a spring time here. If I could give you the color and the dainty perfume of our library this Sunday morning, then take you out in the yard or let you put your hand out the window and feel the cherry blossoms in all their fluffy pinkness, you would say with me that there is only one place in the world better than Japan when gentle breezes come and that place is our own home in Janesville.

"Over in the corner by the big seat is a branch of cherry blossoms, six feet high at least, sending the big bunches of blossoms hit-and-miss on wall, bookcase and seat. On the bookcase is Lisle's stein full of U Rah-Rah Wisconsin camellias like big bold roses. The Japanese do not like these flowers, saying they are like country girls, they are so coarse, but their very gaudiness appeals to Wisconsin cardinal lovers. On the other bookcase is the brass vase with three big red ones and here by me on the table is a big salad bowl of Chinese ware with more big red and old pink camellias, relieved by the waxy dark green leaves.

Japanese Legend

"The little cut glass vase has a little bunch of a choice variety of lemon colored cherry blossoms, called (as interpreted in English) 'kuruma-turn-back' cherry. The emperor, as the story goes, was riding along in a kuruma one day when he saw this unusual and wonderful variety of cherry and ordered the kuruma to turn back in order to see them better. From such a small circumstance comes the name of the tree.

"There are four trees of the pink blossoms along the front of our house and on my right as I look out into the back yard are the double pink ones, about the color of black-berry ice. Our hall down stairs, little square vestibule, is almost hidden in blossoms; for a vase to put them in we pressed into service the old oaken bucket which used to hang in the well. I have the old blue spread over a trunk for a seat in the hall and this makes a fine background for the flowers. We are making the most of them now for in a week they will be gone. If I can't find Lisle at any time I can be pretty sure he has climbed the trees for more blossoms or is out looking at our garden. As yet it is mostly a garden of sun-flowers, which grow as if inspired, but my other seeds will be up soon.

Lawn Without Grass

"The latest acquisition to our domestic economy (an extravagance) is a man who does the gardening in connection with his other duties. He diligently sweeps the yard clean every day and pulls up all the grass he can find, which is very little. The Japanese idea of a fine lawn is of one without grass or weeds, just cleanly swept dirt. It is surprising, too, how pretty it is with the neat little mounds around the trees.

The matter of the lot for building is still pending. We most had a lot bought, a fine location on a high hill. They were to buy yesterday but the man backed out. I think it must have been because Lisle and I walked over to see it. We went one other day to see a lot and the next day the price was raised yen 2 a subo (six feet square). Out of three probabilities in one day we found three impossibilities. They all want to make a little more and put the price up higher. There was one beautiful place with many trees and flowers, a fine stone wall and entrance but that sold the day we went to see it. Now our attention is centered on certain corner lot on a hill which by the way of designation, we call the mustard patch, because of a garden of yellow flowers which look like mustard. I can understand now why papa speaks with so much pride and love of his row of elm trees. The things we have planted here with a view to putting them in our new home are very dear to us already. If they ever get to be as fine as those elms are, we shall have every reason to be proud. It is certainly fun to have a progressive, progressing home-making.

Japanese Student

"Last Tuesday was another of my at-homes and unusual in that it was a bright sunny day. Mr. and Mrs. Barton from Osaka came to call. They came up just to see the cherries at the sights. They are lovely people with lots of money which they spend generously in missionary work. The next night we went by invitation down to the Imperial hotel to visit them, the Helms going too. We found there a Japanese student who could speak no English at all. The Bartons had brought him from Osaka and are paying his way through the Meiji Gakuin, (Gakuin means school) a Presbyterian school here. This boy is a Christian belonging to the Samurai class, but very poor. I have never seen such gratitude as he shows. The next day after we met him he sent us a postal in Japanese, full of the most grateful and polite language. We found this out through Mr. Matsuda's translation, not our own brains' toll. The Bartons have also furnished the money for a boys' dormitory in connection with the Y. M. C. A. in Osaka, so you see how conscientiously they use what they have.

"As they had come up here particularly to see the cherries and there were none prettier than ours, we took some down to the hotel for branches. The wind was blowing a gale and worse. I have never before been out in such a one. The cherry branches formed a sail and the kuruma, kurumaya and passengers sailed down to the hotel in a hurry. Lisle also says I knocked the passengers by the head as we rushed along, but I am innocent as I was ignorant. Mrs. Barton's appreciation repaid me fully for my tired arms.

Burglaries Are Frequent

We found Mrs. Helms very much excited as she had just come in from a spill from a kuruma. Her kuruma had just run into two boys on bicycles and thrown her out, tearing an ugly hole in her lovely new suit she has just made. Bad luck seems to be her portion of late. One afternoon while she was gone for awhile, burglars came in and stole Yen 47 worth of her silver. Burglars are the rule rather than the exception here. The other morning we saw the fresh prints of gels in our newly made flower bed and the bamboo fence was broken down. Soon after the servants came in with word that burglars next door had stolen a great many kimono but had been caught by the policeman. We feel safe now with our silver locked up in a chest and Lisle's revolver at hand. The only trouble with the revolver is that I never dare get up in the night without wakening Lisle for fear my own husband will think I am a burglar and shoot.

"Yesterday came the April musicale on Shopin and Dvorak. It was the best one this season. I have come to enjoy this means of recreation and culture very much. My piano seems to have gained a great name for itself for very often some one says to me 'I hear you have a fine piano.' As soon as we get into our new house I want to have the musicale here. The May meeting is with Dr. Von Koeber and will be at the English legation.

JESSIE BROWN BELIEVED DEAD

IT IS THOUGHT BOAT MUST HAVE BEEN CAPSIZED.

ARE DRAGGING LAKE TODAY

Search for Bodies of the Young Couple Who Disappeared Monday Afternoon, Continued.

Lake Geneva is being dragged today near the spot where Jessie M. Brown of this city and Lawrence Doty of Chicago were last seen. All hope has been abandoned of finding them alive, and the only purpose now is to recover the bodies—a difficult matter as it is a distance of three miles between the points where the couple were last seen and where the boat was found adrift.

Very Heavy Wind.

The boat is a Monitor duck boat, and is of a type which is not suited to carry more than one. The wind was blowing a gale from the northwest when they put out, although in the bay the water was comparatively calm, and it is thought the young people did not notice the force of the wind until they passed Camp Collie Point.

E. Tracy Brown, father of Miss Brown, returned to this city last evening after spending the day in a fruitless search for the unfortunate couple.

Doty Could Swim.

Doty was an expert swimmer, but Miss Brown could not swim, and there undoubtedly was a long battle with the waves before the two finally succumbed.

The young man was the son of Mrs. Flora Doty, widow, living in Pine street in Austin, and was foreman in an establishment manufacturing electrical supplies. He was 25 years old.

Miss Brown was 24 years old and a graduate of Beloit college. During the past year she had studied the pipe organ, and was looking forward with the greatest enthusiasm to a useful career.

Catcher Duke Farrell Tells About One of Cy Seymour's "Aerial Flights" * Eccentric Rube Waddell. Dahlen's Mistake.

The striking success Cy Seymour has made as an outfielder with Cincinnati recalls to fans the time when Cy dawned upon rooters with ambitions as a slab artist. Many reasons were assigned for Seymour's failure as a box man with the New York Nationals, but the real cause for it was his lack of control.

"Seymour's first game with the Giants," said Duke Farrell, the veteran catcher, the other day, "gave me the toughest job I ever had in one game in my life. When the team visited the west on its first trip that year Cy was left behind, with instructions to practice every day. From the beginning of the trip the Giants were up against it, and by the time we got around to Chicago every one of our pitchers, with the exception of Dad Clarke, was on the hospital list.

"There was nothing for it but to send on for Seymour. Cy landed in Chicago feeling frisky, and it was decided to put him in that afternoon. For seven innings there was nothing doing in the line of run getting for the Colts. Cy was working all to the good. He had a drop ball that was wonderful, and his speed had the Chicago batters scared to death. Not a hit did the Colts get off Cy in those seven innings, and things looked rosy enough for us, inasmuch as we had not footed the circuit eight times.

"There were two out in the seventh when Seymour's air ship made its appearance, and for the next twenty minutes I did everything but climb over the grand stand.

"Cy lost his bearings for the third man up and let him walk. Then he slammed one into the next man's bread basket. Then came a couple of wild pitches, and then some one stuck out his bat and clouted a hit. The aerial flight had begun, and I knew it. I walked out and tried to pull Cy together, but he waved me back and hustled over to the players' bench. After putting away two or three glasses of water he hustled back to the box.

"The crowd had got on in the meantime, and they were howling like a lot of Comanche Indians. For the next ten minutes I don't think Cy got more than three over the plate, and all of these the Colts swatted for lusty singles. Seymour was so hot that he did not know what he was doing. First he took off his cap and tossed it over to the side lines. He recovered that and then took off his glove and threw it away. Then the cap went again. I think he would have taken off his shoes if he had not been stopped. All this time I was alternately trying to get him back to earth and clashing to the grand stand after wild ones.

"Seymour was paying no attention to my signals, and I was getting my hands all torn up. Finally Cy was worked up to such a state that after making a pitch he would run to the plate and crab the ball out of my hands, hustle back and, without waiting for my sign, shoot it back. Nine Chicago runs had crossed the plate before the third man had been disposed of. Cy came back to earth in the next inning, but the game was lost. Seymour subsequently in his career had many aerial flights, but nothing like his Chicago performance."

Rube Waddell, the crack pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, says President Pullin of the Nationals, is the cheapest good ball player in the business today.

"Salary," continues the president. "Rube doesn't care whether he gets any salary or not. All you have to do is to keep him supplied with spending money and cigarettes, and he doesn't bother about the rest. He doesn't care any more about money than I do about the mud in the street. He never even comes around to get his check at the end of the month, but lets his money stay where it is.

"When Rube was playing for me I was bothered to death paying his little bills. Rube will buy anything you try to sell him and have the bill sent to the club. When the season ended and he left the club he didn't come around to see how he stood on the club's books. A month or so later I got a letter from him asking for an advance on his next year's salary. He did not even know that the club owed him more money than he had asked for.

"Rube would almost sign a contract for nothing if a club would agree to settle his living bills."

"Pop" Anson was a quick thinker on the ball field, but once he released a second base man for thinking a little bit quicker than anybody else on the nine.

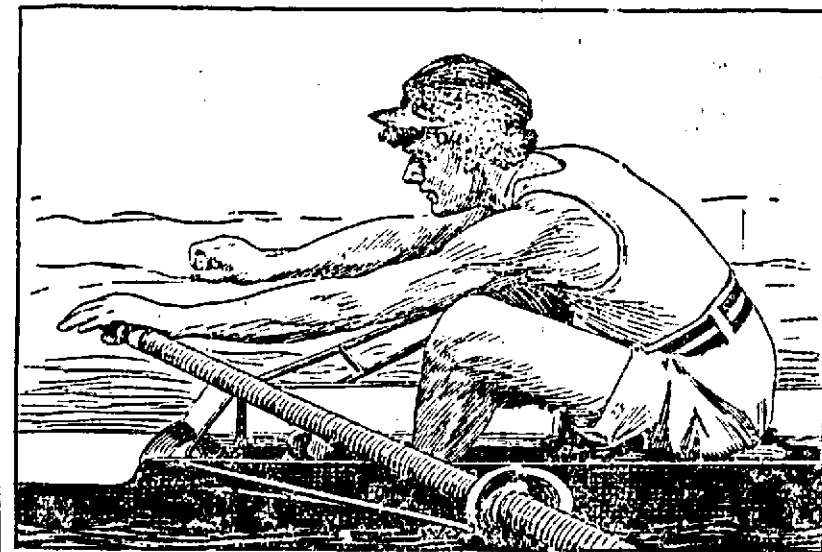

The second base man in question was "Bad Bill" Eagan. Everybody who remembers "Bad Bill" will admit his supremacy on the second bag. When the play in question came up there was a base runner on second. Chicago was one run to the good, and it was in the last half of the ninth inning.

Bill Dahlen, now with Ed Hamilton's Brooklynites, was playing third base for Chicago. The man at bat hit a sharp liner down to second. Eagan started for it, and at the same instant the man on second started for third base.

The liner was a clipper, and the ball struck "Bad Bill's" hands and bounded out. It struck the ground ten feet away, with Eagan right after it. Once he got his hands on it, without stopping to look where he was throwing, "Bad Bill" let the ball fly to Dahlen at third base.

Most ball players, after fumbling the ball would have tossed it to the pitcher or thrown it home if, after looking around, they saw that the base runner had started to try to score.

In this case the base runner, after touching third, went on for twenty feet and then stopped for an instant to see what had become of the ball. He saw it coming straight as a die for third base and went back there like a flash. But the ball beat him by ten feet. Unfortunately for the game, and also for "Bad Bill" Dahlen had taken it for granted that Eagan would throw the ball to the home plate, and was not looking for it to be thrown to him. Consequently the ball went by him, going within four inches of his nose and striking the grand stand far behind.

The result was that both base runners got safely home before Dahlen recovered himself and the ball, and the game was lost to Chicago. Anson was furious, and immediately after the game gave "Bad Bill" his release for making that throw. As a matter of fact it was the best possible play under the circumstances, and Dahlen rather than "Bad Bill" was to blame because it did not come out as planned. If Dahlen had thought as quickly as Bill the game might have been settled right then and there.

Newport Thirty Footers.
The owners of the thirty foot yachts which make Newport their headquarters are having their boats put in readiness for the racing season. Captain Knutson has put Reginald Brooks' Wa Wa in commission and has taken the boat to New York to receive a new set of sails which Ratsey is making. Captain Seaman, who will be in charge of the Carolina, will take that boat from Bristol in a few days. He will be the professional skipper under the direction of Payne Whitney, who will have charge of the Carolina during the absence of her owner, Pembroke Jones. The other boats of the class are now in readiness.

Review of Sport.

Charles W. Pape, Pacific Rowing Champion * Pugnistic Gossip

Charles W. Pape of San Francisco, the champion single sculler of the Pacific coast, who is now in the east seeking the scalps of rival competitors for national honors, is one of the remarkable amateur athletes of the country. He is not only winner of a trunkful of rowing trophies, but is also a swimmer of championship caliber, having defeated several of the well known California aquatic performers.

Pape has had a remarkable career. In 1897 he joined the Dolphin club of San Francisco. He then held the quarter mile swimming championship of the Pacific coast, and after rowing for two months he won his club championship. In the same year he won the championship of San Francisco from a field of four starters over the regulation course of one and one-half miles with turn.

Pape has since successfully defended his title for three years. He competed in a junior single event and went through his classes until he finally won the senior singles championship of the Pacific Athletic association in 1898, beating W. McCausland of Toronto. In 1899 he again won the senior singles and in 1900, at Astoria, Ore., once more captured the championship singles. The following year in Oregon he defeated Gloss, the champion of the northwest, in a match race. In 1902 he added to his laurels by winning the championship of the Pacific coast.

Pape is a tall, wiry looking athlete, standing 5 feet 11½ inches and weighing 152 pounds in condition, and is thirty years old.

He attributes his success as an oarsman to his own unique style. He never took a lesson in his life, excepting a few pointers from Leander Stevenson on watermanship and finish in handling his oars.

Pape has a very peculiar style. He rows with his knees outside of his elbows. He claims that he can secure a firmer grip on the water with his knees apart than he could if he had them close together. Pape uses a seven inch blade and is entirely satisfied with his way of doing things. "In a race," he said recently, "I always like to jolly my opponent, and my plan is to beat him in the first 100 yards or so by setting a very hot pace and taking a good lead at the very beginning."

Jim Corbett is now doing light preliminary training for his fight with Jeffries. He has in fact been preparing himself for this bout for the last four or five months and as a result claims that he is bigger, stronger and faster than ever before.

Of course none of us particularly desires to dispute this matter with Corbett—at least while in range—but at the same time he will have to do a lot of convincing before the ever easy public believes that he is anything like the Jim Corbett of, say, five or six years ago.

If Corbett stays fifteen of the twenty rounds with Jeff a majority of the pugilistic sharps will be surprised. It is a thirty to one shot that he could not knock out Jeffries if the latter stood with his hands at his sides, for the ex-bomber maker has a muscular development and a bony framework of so stanch a nature that a man of phenomenal strength would be required to make any noticeable impression on him. Corbett was never extraordinarily strong. It is more certain still that he is not overburdened with muscle and stamina at the present time, and as for the future—well, he is clearly past the stage where he can improve to any great extent. WILBUR JAMES.

Mr. E. T. Fish, of 355 Ravine street, proprietor of the Fish Dry Line says: "When I was twenty years of age I fell injuring my back, and ever since that I was troubled more or less with a dull aching pain across the loins. It never laid me up but it was often painful and annoying. Of late years I have gone to a physician every six months and had myself thoroughly examined under the impression that there might be something wrong with my kidneys. The diagnosis always resulting in the physician claiming these organs were sound, but as the pains existed when I happened to notice in our Janesville papers that Doan's Kidney Pills were guaranteed to cure just such troubles I procured a box at the People's Drug store and took them. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good preparation. My back has not ached since I used them. I have heard others speak very complimentary of them and if I did not know their merit and required such a medicine I would consider it a favor if some one suggested their use to me. For this reason I endorse them."

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Generally fair tonight and warmer in the west portion Thursday. Partly cloudy with probable showers in west portion Thursday.

FIGHT TO THE END.

Armed by his corps of office holders and his organization of the past four years Governor La Follette is today putting the finishing touches to his machine with the avowed purpose of seeking the nomination of governor for a third term. His speeches at Chautauqua have not been learned discourses but inflammatory tirades upon all forms of government but his own. He has vergered from the lines and ranks of republicanism to enter into the tents of his fellow teacher and compatriot Bryan, and has become as dangerous a man in republican politics as Bryan has in democratic. He has made himself a dangerous enemy to all conservative men who seek but the best good of their party and state. He has upbraided the legislators accusing them of bribery and blackened their characters as dishonest and upright men. He denounced the old leaders of the republican party and has placed himself and his element aloof from the contaminated throng that have for years guided the ship of state through many troublesome waters. La Follette for a third term is an impossibility. Even his erstwhile supporters the State Journal and the Oshkosh Northwestern have conceded this and now the eyes of all turn to the man who will be nominated in face of the machine opposition and elected.

Suggestions have come from all parts of the state as to men who would be available for this office and who would be willing to run. The Oshkosh Northwestern has suggested ex-congressman Isaac Stephenson of Marinette as the man to be chosen. Five years ago this last winter Isaac Stephenson had aspirations to go to the United States senate. He had the support of a goodly number of the members of the legislature. He was defeated and Senator Quarles was elected in his stead. Isaac Stephenson was turned down from a younger man. To many politicians in the state this seemed a disastrous thing for republicanism in Wisconsin. Isaac Stephenson has been characterized as a second Philetus Sawyer. A man of the people and for the people. A great big hearted man from the woods who has made his money by honest labor and who has done much for the party and state he wished to represent in the United States senate. It was a mistake to turn him down. Time has shown that much of the trouble of the past three years might have been avoided had he been honored as was his due by the legislature of 1898. He would have made a good senator and have ably represented the state of Wisconsin among the lawmakers of the nation. Now comes the opportunity to undo the work of the past in part. If Isaac Stephenson would accept the nomination it should be offered to him. If he will thus consent to be honored by his fellow partisans it should be an unalloyed choice. There should be no fight except to see who was to nominate him and who to second the action. In speaking of the situation the Oshkosh Northwestern has the following to say of the situation:

Probably the man in the state so far mentioned presents so many good points in his favor as ex-congressman Isaac Stephenson of Marinette. It has been announced that he is not a candidate and he has done nothing to attract public attention to himself. He is not posing before the public to get himself nominated and he never has tried to elevate himself by pulling down others. These considerations are certainly in his favor.

The great weakness of Mr. La Follette at the present time is that he has given the farmers, the manufacturers, business men and working men to understand that he has declared war on the established institutions of the country. He has joined hands with William J. Bryan in a "calamity howl", accusing every one of corruption who does not agree with him. In a time of unexampled prosperity when labor is employed at good wages, farmers are enjoying a wonderful prosperity and manufacturers are doing a good business, he goes about the country preaching discord and disaffection, stirring up discontent and trying to array one class against another.

It is precisely in this particular quality, that Mr. Stephenson stands preeminently above Mr. La Follette. One is a solid business man who arose from the ranks of the laboring men to a position of wealth and commanding influence. The other is a lawyer and a theorist, who has devoted his whole life to his own political advancement. One has amassed a fortune by hard labor and the exercise of good business judgment, while the other is still in the ranks of the doctrinaires and experimentalists. One has a "stake" in the country and is in sympathy with every man who owns a house and lot a farm or a factory, but the other is like Herr Most and other disturbers, with nothing to lose in case of a financial tempest. It is the men who have had no experience in actual business and no responsibilities in the way of property who are the loudest and most extravagant in denouncing present conditions and telling how things ought to run.

From these considerations, we believe that there is enough in Mr. Stephenson and his surroundings to place him in the eligible class. It is for every intelligent republican to consider the matter for it is the people who should decide the question and not Mr. La Follette. He has had all he is entitled to and anything more now would be a loan without sufficient security.

As to Mr. Stephenson we are inclined to think that if he would accept the nomination his name would have a pacifying effect on the present disturbance and signs of peace would be in the air at once.

If Mr. Bryan and Mr. La Follette would openly join forces the country could put all the forces into one bag and drown them all at once. The Bryanism and La Folletteism are bothisms that should be confined within safe places. They are worse than the Bubonic plague.

We are still waiting to hear from Mars as to what the political situation is as yet. Perhaps about the next century we have a wireless message.

From all accounts General Miles had the best of the retiring proposition. He left the others behind him.

Darius Green tried to make a flying machine also Mr. Langley.

So Mr. Langley's airship preferred the earth to the elements.

PRESS COMMENT

Portage Register: Milwaukee may have a municipal flag. The design contains no suggestion of the city's chief industry.

Marinette Eagle-Star: Wise people in Marinette always carry a supply of winter underwear about, and winter coats are kept handy.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: The plan of fattening 3,000 sheep in Wood county can hardly be called an experiment. Wisconsin grazing has heretofore been tried with success on herds of cattle and flocks of sheep.

Fond du Lac Reporter: Corporal Fred of the United States recruiting service has been here ten days and has only secured three men. He says the people in Fond du Lac are too busy to go to war and has been ordered to go to Oshkosh where he may have better luck.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The prevailing prosperity of the northwest, at a time when Wall street is in the throes of a panic, illustrates the fact that the producers do not need the assistance of the brokers nearly as much as the brokers need the aid of the producers.

Merrill Advocate: In introducing Governor La Follette to the Monona Lakeside assembly last Thursday afternoon, H. W. Chynoweth said "that under his (La Follette's) leadership with your support, if God lets him live, the mission of the political boss will end, his machine be wrecked," etc. When one considers that La Follette is the most remorseless boss politician that this state or any other has ever produced, the above statement is enough to make a horse laugh.

Town Talks.

Hobos entering Janesville in the vicinity of the North-Western railroad yards now consider it the proper thing to register and are enabled to acquaint their fellow brethren already the guests of the Bower City, of their arrival. They do not go to any hotel, nor have they even a book conveniently located, near the freight cars. When one of the order crawls out of an empty box car that has just pulled into the yards, or quietly slides out from his perch on the trucks, all that is necessary is for him to go across the tracks to the nearby leehouse and there he will find, written, printed, scratched, and painted, the names of several hundred "Willies," who have evidently hailed from every quarter of the country. If he is so lucky as to have a knife or can find a nail or stone, he scratches his name among the others with the date of arrival and town that he has come from. Then look over the list and see if any friends have lately struck town. The long scrawling list of names extends all around the building, but the greater number are on the two sides.

GOMPERS CHALLENGES D. M. PARRY TO DEBATE

American Federation Leader Would Discuss Unionism at Indianapolis on Labor Day.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 12.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has personally challenged D. M. Parry, president of the National Manufacturers' Association, to discuss the question of unionism with him at the celebration of Labor day in this city.

When told of the challenge Mr. Parry said he would wait for its delivery with a great deal of interest. He said he wished to remark again that he was not opposed to labor organizations, and he desired the workers to enjoy themselves on Labor day, but that he did object to the methods the unions adopted. Continuing, he said:

"Gompers seems to have attempted a grand stand play by coming to Indianapolis, assailing me in several speeches and making a formal announcement that organized labor had placed my firm on the unfair list. What a great and mighty man this ex-cigar maker has grown to be. I guess however, I can stand it. I have been virtually on the boycott list for months, and my business has been steadily increasing right along through it all."

MURDER IS CHARGED TO COLORED GHOULS

Cantrell and His Gang Are Said to Have Slain a Man at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—The murder of a man named Richard Jordan in September, 1900, in a house on West North street has been traced to Rufus Cantrell, Ollie Saunders and Samuel Martin, the latter two being members of Cantrell's gang of colored ghoul.

Martin killed the man with a club, and after he was thrown into the cell, Cantrell cut his throat with a jackknife. The murder was witnessed by a resident of West North street, but he was in such terror of Cantrell and his gang that he said nothing about it till the ghoul was sent to prison.

T. S. NOLAN IMPLIES THAT WITNESSES FRAMED UP STORY

ATTORNEY HINTS AT GETTING TOGETHER

ALBRIGHT MAKES A DENIAL

The Testimony Taken in Examination Agrees Substantially with That First Taken.

Although the examination to determine whether Tom Joyce shall be held to answer to the charge of murdering Herman Zimmerman was continued to a late hour yesterday afternoon, the district attorney had not concluded his list of witnesses when the hour came to adjourn for the day. The examination will be continued on Thursday. Court Reporter Francis Grant is away from the city today and his absence necessitated the postponement of the hearing.

Following the testimony of Dr. J. B. Whiting, Jr., regarding the condition of Zimmerman's body at the time of the autopsy, four other witnesses were called. Their statements all served to clear the mystery which, so far as the general public was concerned, shrouded the entire fracas. The officers have been in possession of the important facts bearing on the assault for weeks, but hesitated to give them out for fear Joyce and other important witnesses might slip from their grasp. The evidence which has been thus far presented is regarded as decidedly damaging, and unless the defense has a strong card up its sleeve it is considered practically assured that Joyce will be held to the circuit court.

Was Very Drunk. William Albright, nineteen years of age, the third member of the trio which started out upon a drunken spree on the night of the Zimmerman assault, corroborated the narrative of Blum. He told of following the youth and girl who came out from the opera house, of waiting near Sutherland's book store while the couple were in Allie Razook's confectionary store, and of watching from a distance the encounter which took place in the road near the brick house directly north of the courthouse. When the fight ended the couple walked on down the street, the trio following at a distance of nearly a block. The young man and his companion entered the Hotel London, and after circling the block the other party arrived in the park again. The name of the youth was given by Albright as Fred. He professed inability to recognize the girl if he were to see her.

Reaching the park Albright went to sleep on a bench while the other two slumbered on the grass. At about one o'clock Albright awoke and awakened his companions. His efforts to induce the other two to go home with him proved ineffective, and he parted from them at the corner of Pleasant and South River streets. Later in the night, after he was in bed, he heard Blum come in, but he was so drowsy that he could not tell the hour.

Joyce's Face Scratched. Albright testified that the subject of the Zimmerman fracas was brought up the next morning when he saw Joyce by his asking Joyce how he received the scratches on his face. He said that Joyce told him that Blum had hit George Champion with a bottle. Joyce also remarked, in telling of the first encounter, that it made him sore to see anybody with his girl. In the cross examination Mr. Nolan brought out the fact that Albright lives with his cousin, Blum, instead of his parents, who reside in this city. He learned that Albright had been in the courthouse park two or three nights this spring. "What were you doing in the park?" queried the attorney. "What anybody would be doing who was on a drunk," was the rejoinder.

"Then you were drunk, were you?" "We were all about the same." "So each of the two or three times you have gone up to the park this spring you have been drunk? And you are just nineteen years old?"

Albright admitted that the facts were substantially accurate.

Wanted to Fix Up Story. Mr. Nolan's efforts to secure a confession that an attempt had been made to agree on a story to explain the Zimmerman affair did not meet with entire success. Albright said he had met Joyce near the Spring Brook store one day, and had asked the latter why he did not fix up a story and stand by it, but he would not admit that "Moosey," as Blum is familiarly known about the city, had framed up an account of the fracas to which all should agree. "Did not Moosey have a story fixed up in black and white," said Mr. Nolan.

"No sir."

"Did you tell any of the Stendahl family that you were going to stand by a story?"

In reply to the latter question Albright declared that he had not seen any of the Stendahls.

Blum's story that he was more sober toward the close of the evening's dissipation was strengthened by Albright's statement that Blum had been very sick and had been unable to retain thy liquor he had swallowed.

Fred Capelle Saw Fight. Fred A. Capelle told of returning from a meeting of the whist club at the home of Frank Jackman, in company with Frank and James F. field, and hearing a girl's screams at the edge of the courthouse park. In the place indicated by the previous witnesses. He saw a man who said that his name was Tom Joyce whipping another fellow. Joyce made remarks to the girl which she appeared to resent. They were to the effect that her character was not spotless. Joyce later made the assertion that he could lick the entire set of spectators who had gathered.

Dr. F. B. Farnsworth, who treated Zimmerman in his last illness was then called, and told of the condition of the injuries from the time he first saw Zimmerman lying on the floor at the Zimmerman home, the farthest house on the west side of Wisconsin street—the street down which Zimmerman took to flight—up to the time of the autopsy. Dr. Farnsworth was summoned to care for the body at three o'clock on Sunday morning, May 24th. Death occurred June 3rd.

Joyce Talked of Scrape. Frank Leek, a Spring Brook boy, told of meeting Joyce in Spring Brook on the Sunday morning after the Zimmerman mix-up and talking with him about the matter. Leek's statement was that Joyce had told him that he had met a man named Zimmerman in the park and hit him with a rock.

This coal is to be kept here in case of a shortage in the supply or a blockade or other trouble so that there will be a ready supply on hand at all times. The custom of putting in a large amount of fuel at this time in place has been followed by the company for the last three years.

REXLOTH GOES TO PRISON AT WAUPUN

Man Who Stole from W. E. Clinton & Co's Bindery, Gets Eighteen Months.

William Rexloth, the aged tramp printer who broke into the bindery of W. E. Clinton and company last week, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning, and was sentenced by Judge C. L. Fildfield to spend the coming eighteen months in the state penitentiary. The material which he stole consisted of several fonts of brass type, some gold leaf, and some gold spectacles, all of which were found on his person. He secured entrance to the bindery at night.

Yesterday Rexloth was brought up before Judge Fildfield and the information which District Attorney Jackson had filed was read to him. He does not speak English with fluency and understands it no better and so when the judge explained to him that he was charged with burglary he could only murmur "Burglary, what is it I do not know." He managed to convey the idea that he did not know whether he should plead guilty to larceny, burglary, or some other crime, and so Judge Fildfield appointed an attorney to advise him.

OLDEST MAN IN COUNTY HERE

AGED COLORED MAN CAME TO CITY TODAY.

FIRST VISIT IN FIVE YEARS

Is One Hundred and Six Years of Age—Was Once a Slave—Lives in Magnolia.

Frank Davis, the oldest man in Rock county visited some of his friends in the city this morning. It is five years since Mr. Davis was last in town from his forty-acre farm in Magnolia township. Mr. Davis was 106 years old the first of May, and although his great age is apparent in his wrinkled features and venerable appearance he is still fairly strong and is spryer than many men thirty years younger.

Strong for Age. Mr. Davis stood for some time near the corner of Main and Milwaukee street without apparently feeling at all fatigued. He has good memory and talks interestingly of times long past and has had many and varied experiences in the course of his eventful life.

Born in Slavery. Starting life as a slave near the town of Columbia, South Carolina, and coming farther north before the war, Mr. Davis saw a great deal of the long struggle. He was never enlisted but tells of being a teamster under Grant, and can tell many stories of those times. Mr. Davis and his wife, who is 97 years old, live on their forty-acre farm, but he is not able to do any work now himself. He drove in this morning behind a team that he raised himself and although one of the nags is twenty years old, he said, the distance of 12 miles was covered in an hour and a half. They have been living in the town of Magnolia for over thirty-five years.

Pretty Hats and Gowns of the Summer Fashions

The Dictates of Dame Fashion Are Unusually Pleasing This Season.

DO not know that I am altogether pleased with the fashionable headgear of the moment. Of course, there are some beautiful specimens, but these are mostly very trying, and on the whole I should say that the best models are not universally becoming. To begin with, they are extraordinarily flat and wide, (though in the early part of the season they were high and narrow) and I think they are rather apt to dwarf the head and shoulders when worn in company with the sloping pelerine.

Most of the toques and the ordinary practical models are of the wide, flat, improved sailor shape, simply trimmed with a wreath of flowers. They have, of course, all the chic of elegant simplicity, and suit a piquant French face, but the real artist will find, when viewing them from the side and back, that the lines are not quite right.

The picture hat is mostly of the shepherdess type, and this is very becoming becoming to the majority. Let us be careful to avoid these terrible patterns and zig-zag stripes which destroy all symmetry of feature.

Out of door fashions are, of course, the popular ones at this season, and I am showing some of the most attractive models in the illustrations.

Smart simplicity is the key-note of the very stylish yachting costume. The material is a blue and white striped flannel and the numerous sections of the skirt are held together with fancy stitches in a new and effective style, and these are discontinued some inches from the bottom, so that the fan-shaped pleats may have full play over the foot. This novel skirt is cleverly constructed to get a maximum of smartness, and yet to preserve the simple outlines which are obviously necessary to any gown that is intended for yachting and seaside wear, when breezy south-westerns are more or less the order of the day, and this point will no doubt be appreciated by any keen sailor. The double breasted vest becoming to the majority. Let us be careful to avoid these terrible patterns and zig-zag stripes which destroy all symmetry of feature.

becoming to the majority. Let us be careful to avoid these terrible patterns and zig-zag stripes which destroy all symmetry of feature.

TWO CHARMING FETE GOWNS.

to attractive, round babyish faces, but absolutely at variance with hard and strongly marked features. There is very little variety in this class of "best" headgear, unless we turn to the Grainsborough and Romney shapes at colossal prices.

There is always a certain amount of danger when pale colors are worn on the head, such as green, mauve, etc. They may be beautiful in themselves, but they are trying even to pretty faces and good complexions. So, to bring it all round, darker brims should be universally de rigueur.

There are many hats which necessitate the use of a little "make-up," but in choosing your season's headgear I advise you to avoid such models as these, as there are many beautiful ones which enhance one's good looks without artistic aid.

To wear with country frocks there is a jaunty little Marquise hat or something similar, which is delightful in chip or tulle finished with cockades of knife-kilted ribbon. Then there are all sorts of quaint bows and rosettes, made in various soft materials which also form inexpensive trimmings for the country hat with the addition of a soft quill or two.

Those made of linen embroidery have taken the place of the muslin hat of yore, and when worn with a frock of matching color, have a decided chic of their own. Brown hats are charming with the brown suit. The finest Russian nets are is of white pique ornamented with fancy buttons, and the revers and cuffs are of white cloth, hem-stitched at the edges in a pretty open work design, and the tout ensemble is altogether charming.

Two lovely fete gowns are pictured. That on the left is made of hand-painted chiffon with graduated rows of emerald-green ribbon velvet on the shoulders and bodice, and the broad-brimmed picture hat is trimmed with pale pink roses and foliage. The pretty frock on the right is made of embroidered chiffon mounted on pale blue silk with handsome real lace trimmings round the cape and at the bottom of the flounce, and the waistband is of folded puce velvet. The picture hat is of creamy lace with a frill hanging down over the edge of the brim, and it is trimmed with rosettes of soft blue satin ribbon.

How enthusiastic Dame Fashion has become about the pelerine and everything of the pelerine shape. Certainly I think the fluffy feather pelerines are much prettier than the flat stoles of the past season. These are now giving place to the pelerine collar of mousseline de soie and chiffon and to the lace scarf draped in this fashion.

We are still remaining faithful to the blouse in lace, guipure, net, or what we will, worn with a pelerine collar or flieu to correspond in fabric with the skirt. This is a pretty way of connecting the two.

I have lately seen a charming spotted muslin—a white ground with graduated, red spots—made with a bodice of fine guipure and a gauged pelerine of spotted muslin to match the skirt, trimmed with Oriental red embroidery. This was worn with an all-red, flat sailor hat. It would look charming at Ranelagh or Hurlingham and was very fresh and dainty. The same model is being copied for a lovely mine in green, finished with a friend mauve face waist-band.

By the way, blue is a color which is very much in favor and is produced in lovely shades, though I still wish fair haired beauties would leave it severely alone and take to pale yellow shades in its stead. But this does not alter the fact that pale blue is lovely in itself, particularly when accompanied by tinted lace. It takes a beautiful sheen in linen and the new coarse canvases.

Practical frocks in biscuit, yellow and ivory shades are mostly trimmed with black taffeta. But these bizarre contrasts are not effective unless carried out with consummate skill.

It is in full evening dress that real artists can exercise to the full their fancy in the mixing of beautiful colors. The "razz" for lace is by no means abating. In fact, it seems to be increasing, and really wonderful imitations are produced.

PINK EYE COMMON AMONG THE CATTLE

Disease Is Epidemic in This State in Sections—Veterinarian Gives Instructions.

So-called "pink-eye"—properly termed "contagious ophthalmia"—has appeared among cattle in this and other states and presents the following effects:

Symptoms: Adult young cattle and calves first show swelling of the eyelids accompanied by weeping. Redness of membranes of eyelids and "haw" becomes apparent, creamy discharge follows and in three or four days a clouded spot shows in center of eye and gradually spreads until "sight" of eye becomes milk-colored. Changing from milk color to pearl tint eye may become yellow, bulge, show blood-shot streaks, from an abscess and burst, leaving a ragged ulcer or commence to clear up and finally recover. Slight ulcers may heal by granulation, but extensive ruptures and ulcers often lead to loss of sight. Fever and some loss of appetite is present, especially in young cattle, for a week or more from the time of first attack and dairy cows may shrink in milk production.

Treatment: The disease is being "catching" and doubtless due to a germ which leads to its spread from one animal to another affected cattle should be separated from unaffected; eyes of the latter should be washed once or twice a week with a solution of two drachms of boracic acid in a pint of water as a possible on rivers, ponds and sloughs should be abandoned as the disease seems most liable to attack the cattle grazing on such low wet ground. Place affected cattle in a dark shed or stable. Give each adult animal a one pound dose of epsom salts with one ounce of saltpeter and one ounce of ground ginger root in two quarts of warm water as one dose and follow with a tablespoonful of saltpeter twice daily in drinking water of soft food. Younger cattle should have the same medicine in smaller doses according to age and size. While under treatment do not feed grain but give soft and green food allow all the cold water animals will take. At the commencement of an attack puff between eyelids by means of a clean insect powder bellows a mixture of equal parts of finely powdered camell and boracic acid; or cover eyes with soft cloth to keep wet with 1-20000 solution of bichloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate). This treatment may prove sufficient in a majority of cases but should the disease persist and aggravate, substitute for above lotion one, consisting of a drachm each of sulphate of zinc and fluid extract of belladonna leaves with 20 drops of carbolic acid in a quart of clean, soft water with which to keep cloth over eyes continually wet. When inflammation subsides should eye remain milky-appearing paint once daily with 1-10000 solution of bichloride of mercury of 3 per cent. solution of boracic acid. In bad cases which are tardy in responding to treatment give—except to pregnant cows, one drachm of iodine of potash twice a day for adult animal and from ten to twenty grains for calves and yearlings, continuing its use for one week. Ragged ulcers may be with benefit be painted with a solution of three grains of nitrate of silver in an ounce of distilled water two or three times a week. Lastly, quarantine animals bought at stock yard shipped in or from infected herds.

SEASON BEGINS AT THE MYERS GRAND

"Two Merry Tramps" Played to a Happy Audience—Coming Attractions for the Grand.

"Two Merry Tramps" amused a good sized audience at the opera house last evening. Some of the songs that were sung during the three acts of the farce were "The Belle of East Side," "My Jamaica May," "When the Lights Are Turned Away Down Low," which were sung by Miss Bessie Bennett who responded to several encores. Her imitations of a small child singing were good and she was forced to return to the stage several times. George Thompson, as the Swede boy, was excellent and he kept the audience convulsed most of the time he was on the stage. H. C. Lefever in a short act showed himself to be master of the bicycle and gave a good exhibition of trick riding.

Manager Myers has booked Mr. Walker Whiteside to fill an engagement at the Myers Grand early next season. Mr. Whiteside will then produce a new comedy of which he only recently secured the American rights. The new play is by Gordon Keane, an English playwright and is called "We Are King."

No period in the romantic history of Mexico is more interesting than the reign and fall of the Emperor Maximilian. It is during this period that the story of "A Royal Slave" is laid. The leading characters of the proud old Castilian stock of the aristocratic families of Mexico, and the Royal Slave himself is the last descendant of the Montezumas, the ancient Aztec kings, but himself a Peon, or slave. The company will play at the Grand on Friday evening.

The show the public likes must be breezy, full of talent, and highly diversified. Such a show commands the support of all amusement patrons who know it, and such a show H. Henry is said to have this year. He will present his new up to date big minstrel aggregation when the curtain rings up at the Myers Grand next Monday night.

Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, August 12, 1863.—Nevada sends a handsome contribution to the New York Christian commission, in form of a bar of silver valued at $1800.

Buffaloes in Iowa.—Out in the northern part of Hardin county, near Iowa Falls, a large drove of buffaloes made their appearance last week and the people have had plenty of sport hunting them.

Fort Blunt, I. T., Aug. 12.—A battle is imminent at this point. Since our victory at Honey Springs, Cherokee Nation, the rebels have been reinforced by returning to the old battlefields. The union force here is about 2,500 efficient men. The 13th Kansas Infantry and a battalion of the 6th Kansas cavalry in all about 800 men, are making forced marches

WITH LINK AND PIN. Gossip For Railroad Men From All Over the United States.

Postmaster General Payne has virtually decided to place every railroad train in the United States under government protection. He will issue an order making every passenger train and some freight trains carriers of United States mail. All baggage masters and other train men, where necessary, will be formally constituted agents of the postal service.

Mr. Payne will take this action at the suggestion of the newspaper publishers who have complained of trouble in carrying their mail matter so as to be of greatest convenience to the public. After the order is issued, newspapers can be carried on any train.

The railroad companies have heretofore been willing to handle mail matter, but the postal authorities insisted they would not be responsible unless it was carried in regularly sealed pouches and in custody of properly appointed clerks. This will be changed so baggage masters and other trainmen will be made postal agents and the government will assume full responsibility for the matter handled. This is regarded as one of the most important innovations made operative in years. It will materially enhance the value of rural free delivery.

The Rock Island system, for purposes of management, has been divided into three parts. First there will be the old Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, with recent extensions and improvements. Second, the St. Louis and San Francisco system, exclusive of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois. Third, the Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans road, including the Chicago and the Eastern Illinois, and half a dozen subsidiary lines, acquired by the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad and about 300 miles of new lines to be built from Memphis to Fort Adams. Thenew company is joint owner with the Southern railway of extensive terminals at New Orleans.

Evidently the alleged car famine on the east bound roads is greatly exaggerated. The roads are not doing nearly as large a business as a year ago. Last week's shipments of grain from Chicago east were the smallest in over three years, decreasing 346,000 bushels from the previous week and 1,241,000 bushels from last year. There was a slight increase in flour and provision shipments. General business is about holding its own.

An important change in the management of the Rock Island system was announced by President Leeds yesterday. John Stevens has been made fourth vice president of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific proper, the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf, and the St. Louis, Kansas City, and Colorado railroads.

Track laying has been commenced on the unconstructed portion of the Chicago, Memphis and New Orleans division of the Rock Island-Frisco system. The track layers are at work from Bloomfield south.

St. Paul Road
Work has been begun putting in a brick drain around the edge of the depot platform and at the rear of the building. This is expected to prevent any further accumulation of water on the driveway after rains.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wright left for Fair Haven, Washington, last night.

Mrs. Oscar Crandall, who is spending the summer at Lake Geneva and Mrs. H. Emerson of Beloit are visiting in the city for a day or two.

Beloit band will run an excursion to Crystal Springs park, Sunday, Aug. 16th.

North-Western Road
Operator McNeilly began work last night at Shopiere; on Monday night there was no one there and the station was closed.

Frank Sullivan, machinist helper at the roundhouse, went to Edgerton yesterday afternoon and will attend the picnic there today.

B. H. Baldwin, transfer agent, will take a two weeks' vacation, beginning this morning.

Another accident has occurred at the roundhouse fountain. Last night twenty-four of the fish died so now to Fort Scott and are expected on Thursday.

Lee's whole army is south of the Rapidan. Mead's army is being reformed at the rate of 500 every day. Four hundred drafted men leave Philadelphia tomorrow morning.

As a result of the heavy bombardment of Fort Sumter that was looked for yesterday morning, an arrival of a steamer at Fortress Monroe from Port Royal, brought no news whatever, of any movement.

Refugees from East Tennessee report that Forest's mounted force was to rendezvous at Kingston or Concord. A rebel brigade under Armstrong, had arrived at the former place.

Bragg's whereabouts according to a Corinth letter writer, are somewhere in the vicinity of Atlanta, Ga., which place he is advancing upon to defend and fortify, with Rosecrans not far away.

The number is materially reduced. It is thought their death was caused by allowing the hose to run into the bottom of the pond full force, which would lower the temperature considerably. Mr. Erickson plans to get in a fresh supply soon.

The roof at the station and platform is being repaired and some of the slates renewed.

A stone ditch is to be constructed at the west end of the car repair shop as the water from the road is washing under the foundations.

Engine 223 went out yesterday after several days in the roundhouse, being repaired.

LAW DECISIONS FOR LAYMEN

Recent Court Rulings That Will Interest the Busy Reader Very Much.

Telegraph Law.
The National Telegraph News Co., controlling a system of wires within the city of Chicago, connecting their operating office with their tickers in the offices of the patrons of their own, appropriated the news printed on the Western Union Telegraph Co. tape, transmitted on a ticker commonly found in the offices of brokers, bankers, etc. interested in the current prices of securities, and in hotels, saloons, and other places. Held, that the contention of the National Telegraph News Co., that such matter being without copyright, is unprotected against appropriation by the public, must be overruled; that such information, when appropriated, is within the "protection" of courts of equity, and may be stopped by an injunction. 119 Federal Rep. (Illinois) 294.

Constitutional Law
In the case of the Pullman Co. vs. Adams, the supreme court of the United States, in an opinion delivered by Mr. Justice Holmes, upholds the validity of a special tax laid by the state of Mississippi upon sleeping cars. The tax was resisted by the Pullman Co., on the ground that it was an interference with interstate commerce. The supreme court of Mississippi took a different view and its judgment is now affirmed.

Telephones.
The supreme court of Nebraska has added recently one more decision in favor of the rule that the erecting of poles and wires along streets and highways is a servitude for which the abutting land owner may have compensation in damages. The court further holds, specifically, that a telephone company is liable in damages for cutting, mutilating and destroying trees which have been planted by the abutting land owner, though the evidence showed that no unnecessary injury was inflicted. 93 Northwestern Rep. (Neb.) 201.

Police Officers.
In State vs. City of St. Louis it was held that where a policeman incurs liability while in the performance of his duty, and while in the legitimate scope and discharge thereof, the municipality has the right to indemnify him against loss, and hence, where a policeman shot a mad steer on the streets of St. Louis and instead of hitting the steer wounded a boy, and ordinance passed by the city reimbursing him for the judgment and cost of the suit recovered by the boy for the injury, was valid and not in violation of the state constitution. 73 Southwestern Rep. (Missouri) 623.

Board of Health.
The supreme court of New York, fourth appellate division, holds, in the case of Lester vs. Eno, that where the health officer of a town, acting under the authority of the board of health orally employs a physician to treat and care for the patients in the town who were then or who might there after be afflicted with small-pox, assuring the physician that he would be well paid for his services, the town is liable to the doctor for the reasonable value of the services rendered by him.

First Negro Court Clerk.
New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12.—George E. Crawford, the negro law student of Yale who won the Townsend prize money in oratory, has been appointed a clerk in the Probate court here by Judge L. W. Cleaveland. This is the first instance of a negro clerk in a Connecticut court.

"JACKIES" WANT TO WEAR PAJAMAS

Old Fashioned Sleeping Clothes Meet with Disfavor Among Many of Uncle Sam's Sailors.

Sharp discussion has been precipitated in the navy by the proposition to supplant the night shirt by roomy suits of pajamas as the nocturnal service uniform of the American Jackies. Advocates of the innovation have styled themselves the "pajama brigade," and the opponents who cling to the old time garment with a loyalty based largely on sentiment and tradition, are dubbed "nighties."

Just now the "nighties" have the better of it, but the members of the "brigade" declare that when Secretary Moody and Rear Admiral Taylor, the chief of the bureau of navigation, return to Washington the potency of the arguments in favor of the change will undoubtedly convince them of the injustice of the "nighties" cause.

Sample Pair For Moody.
In the mail of Rear Admiral Taylor came a radiant sample pair of pajamas from a prominent mercantile firm, which offered to manufacture Jackies' pajamas after a special pattern and designs at a price of $1.25 per pair. The pajamas have been placed on file pending the rear admiral's return from his vacation next month. Secretary Moody is also away and the matter will not be decided until September, when both of these officials return to Washington and can give it their careful attention. Efforts will be made by the active "pajama brigade" to obtain a hearing before the secretary.

Wish to Follow Officers.
The "brigade" claims that in the first place the new garment is far more comfortable, up-to-date, and serviceable than the night shirt. The officers discarded night shirts for pajamas, and the men see no reason why they should not keep up the pace set by their superiors. They call attention to the fact that pajamas are in use in several foreign navies and have proved satisfactory.

To offset these claims the "nighties" contend that the old time garment is considerably more "get-inable, and washable" than pajamas; that the night shirt will stand the wear and tear of ship life as no pajamas ever made can do. Finally they hold that certain considerations are due to tradition which should not be ignored, and that tradition is decidedly on the side of the night gown.

Another objection to the introduction of pajamas into the navy which a prominent naval officer has advanced was that the men will wish to report for early morning scrubbing duty in pajamas instead of undershirts, as is now customary. The sailors' undershirts are blue and make a satisfactory uniform while the Jackies are busy scrubbing the deck and doing their morning chores the pajamas can be easily rolled up, and the men will find them a convenient uniform while performing these duties.

Only Secretary Can Decide
In washing his clothes the Jackie is fastidious. He spreads each garment out on deck and scrubs it with a stiff brush, thoroughly soaped, both inside and out, and then wrings and wrings it clear. It is easy to put a nightshirt through this process, but pajamas, it is asserted, will be more troublesome and will not stand scrubbing so well. The discussion has reached such a point and the question is so momentous now, it is said, only the secretary of the navy can render a decision.

Greeting

For two years Beloit has held the most successful Fair ever given in this section of the country and backed by this record they purpose making The Third Annual Fair one long to be remembered by the thousands who expect to meet there Aug. 18, 19, 20, 21, 1903. The Buildings are said to be the best owned by any except the State Fair, and the grounds are the most beautiful possible, being close to the city and easily reached from the C. & N. W. Ry. and C. M. & St. P. Ry., and also within a very short distance from the Rockford, Beloit and Janesville Electric line, with cars running every half hour and during Fair week it is safe to promise one-fourth hour service.

The exhibit this year will be one for farmers and stock breeders, manufacturers, artists and those interested in culinary and textile goods. The several departments are again in charge of experienced superintendents and much care will be given exhibitors and their goods.

Special attention is called to the list of awards which is more complete than heretofore and the best offered this year. The best half mile track in the northwest and with the list of twelve races, each with purse of $400, promise close finishes on the fast track. There will be good entertainment between the heats of the races, which will hold your attention until sundown.
